

Lily grew up during the Cultural Revolution in China (1966-1976). During that time all churches were closed, most Bibles and religious books were burned and Christians were under suspicion.

Lily's family was Christian. They had been able to hide away and protect one Bible. Twice a week they gathered as a family to read and study the Bible, to sing hymns and to pray.

One day, they heard that the Red Guard was coming to search all the homes in their area. Lily's mother carefully wrapped their precious Bible to protect it. She then asked Lily to take it across the railroad tracks and bury it until the danger passed.

1. If you were Lily how would you have felt?
2. What would you have done? Why?
3. What do you think might have been the result of the witness of Christians like Lily and her family?
4. Try to guess what Lily is doing in this picture and how she is a witness for Christ today.
